Product description

The 'Agora' picnic set has been designed for public spaces. It is ideal for squares, city parks or school playgrounds. The sturdy frame and the beams made from locally sourced, impregnated Douglas fir ensure a long service life with minimal maintenance.

The benches do not have their own legs but are attached to the side supports of the table. This gives the set an airy, clean look and comfortably seats eight people.

In ancient Greece, the agora was a place of gathering. A fitting name for a picnic table that invites people to come together.

Please note!

The benches made from pressure-treated Douglas fir may show relatively large cracks. This is part of the design.

Resin may occasionally seep from the treated Douglas fir. This indicates that the wood is still in the curing process. This is part of the wood's natural character, but is only a temporary phenomenon. Once cured, the resin can be easily removed with sandpaper or a small brush.
